INTRODUCTION

There is no doubt that the role and influence of upbringing child in the family is invaluable in shaping and enhancing the unique spirituality of each nation. Because the purest and purest feelings of man, the first vital concepts and imaginations are formed first of all in the heart of the family. It is natural that the spiritual criteria and views that determine the character, nature and worldview of the child - the foundation of sacred concepts such as goodness and kindness, nobility and compassion, honor and dignity are highlighted in the family. Respecting parents, which arises in the family environment, a deep understanding of the duty of lifelong debt to them, is the basis of human qualities and family relationships, the spiritual world of the family.

MATERIALS AND METHODS

Many years of scientific observations and research show that a person receives 70% of all information in his life before the age of five. If we take into account that a child's consciousness is formed mainly at the age of 5-7, it is begins to happen during this peiord. The wise saying of our people, "Parents are the mirror to their children," I think, is a clear reflection of this ancient truth. Natural skills and traits that a human being will need for a lifetime, such as each child's unique and adaptive abilities, how he or she interacts with people around him or her, how he or she feels among peers, whether or not he or she has leadership qualities, and, if necessary, worldview life experience proves in many examples that first of all his innate nature, however, is inextricably linked with the upbringing he receives in the family.

Child begins to understand and comprehend all the good and bad, his immaculate consciousness, like a piece of paper, absorbs all the events in the family, around them, the impressions behind them. His love and respect for his parents and grandparents, his attitude to the environment around him is improving day by day. In short, everything in the house - be it trees and plants, various toys, pets - all of these seem to the child's eyes as a unique miracle of the universe, and thus he discovers the bright world for himself.

Unfortunately, some parents do not pay attention to such interests and aspirations of their children, to the fact that every day there is a change in his consciousness, new questions arise in his eyes. Moreover, if a father does not know how to behave in the family and treats his children rudely instead of setting an example in the moral sphere, this will naturally have a negative effect on the formation of the child's spiritual world appears as a habit.

Or if the family is not seen by its neighbors, the atmosphere of corruption, provocation prevails, all this will undoubtedly leave an irreparable complication in the memory of the child. In general, it is not difficult to understand that due to the spiritual environment and upbringing in the family, the child will grow up to be either kind and compassionate, or selfish and tolerant. If we want to see the happiness, fortune and perfection of our children, we must always think about how the behavior of people not only in the family, but also in the neighborhood affects the developing pure heart and mind of the child, and remember that we have a great responsibility. In order not to make a mistake in the matter of family upbringing, first of all, it would be expedient to build the spiritual climate in each house on the basis of mutual respect, morality, and human relations. Speaking about this, I am convinced that our ancestors paid great attention to the spirituality of the family in the example of the interaction and dialogue of the heroes of the classic writer Abdullah Qadiri's "Days Gone ", when they spoke "even" to their young children. From this point of view, it is natural that we are all envious of the many exemplary families living in our country today with such beautiful moral standards, raising their sons and daughters in this spirit. It is known that the Uzbek people have always been distinguished by their childhood and family. Of course, loving children, filling their stomachs and idols is their own way, but it has always been important for us to bring up our children from an early age on the basis of national upbringing, morality and high spirituality. It can be seen in many real-life examples that ignoring this issue is very costly not only for some parents but for the whole community.

In this sense, adults who know the lows and highs of marriage emphasize that "the heart of a child is as delicate as a crystal glass." If this delicate heart is wounded at a young age, if it faces spiritual threats, if it cannot be saved from the family environment, it will become a difficult issue for it to be able to find its place in the future. Growing a child to be healthy and mature in every way requires vigilance from every parent. Because the child goes to school again outside the family, and then goes to secondary special education.

The role of the family is also invaluable in his ability to make the right life position for himself, drawing conclusions from his daily adventures and experiences. If he doesn't die, no teacher can teach him, - said Hazrat Navoi.

Everything we do today is for the happiness of our children, for their bright future. But happiness is not defined only by wealth and possessions. A polite, knowledgeable and intelligent, hardworking, faithful child is the greatest wealth not only of a parent, but of the whole society. Based on this fact, I would like to see that today it is not only our main task, but also our human duty to bring up our youth in a healthy and harmonious way, to strengthen the family, which is a spiritual fortress that ensures the eternity of life, the continuity of generations.

It is clear that raising a child is very complicated and responsible. This requires every parent to work on themselves regularly, to keep abreast of all the information about the upbringing of children. Parenting is not just a set of experience, simple instructions and knowledge, but also a complex process that includes knowledge in areas such as religious and moral knowledge, medicine, ethics, psychology, and pedagogy. Another method that parents can use as a tool in teaching their child to spend time effectively is the judicious use of modern information technology. It is important for the parents to take the child with him to the scenic places of nature, museums, and at the same time to instill in his heart the beauty of beauty.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, the parental and family environment is very important for the upbringing of a generation with strong spiritual immunity, the ability to express themselves fluently, to achieve high results. It is no secret that the conquest of the human heart and mind, especially the various dangers of poisoning the spiritual world of young people, is growing in today's world. Only a strong young generation will protect our sacred land from foreign and alien influences, will be able to save from disasters, to develop our country in all respects. A healthy child is formed primarily under the influence of a healthy family environment. His confidence in the great future stems primarily from the great responsibility of parents, the adults around him, and the educational institutions around him.
